Jim Walberg is a top-performing residential real estate advisor ranked in the top 1% of colleagues nationally. He is the team leader of The Bay Area Team at Compass, specializing in serving the real estate needs of the East Bay of the San Francisco Bay Area. For Jim, real estate is about helping people make important life decisions with clarity, confidence, and someone genuinely looking out for their best interests.

A REALTOR® since 1990, Jim's career has taken him across virtually every side of the real estate business—from building luxury spec homes and leading boutique brokerages to representing distinctive homes, estates, and country properties throughout the East Bay. That experience gives him a broad perspective on both the value of a property and the lifestyle it can provide. Jim also works with trusted relocation and referral partners around the world, helping clients navigate moves across the country and internationally.

A Danville resident since 1970, Jim's deep local knowledge and long-standing community relationships are central to his work. He shares that knowledge through community storytelling, exploring the people, places, and history that make the East Bay home. Outside of real estate, he enjoys family time, traveling the world, discovering fabulous wines, sailing and stream fishing.

Jim measures his success not simply by transactions, but by the people he has had the privilege to serve. His approach is straightforward: listen carefully, provide honest insight, advocate for his clients, and make a complex process feel clear and manageable.

Jim is further distinguished as:
